OLYMPIC NEWS

March 1, 2006

From Mrs. Mumy's Speech Room

Scavenger Hunt Cards – Need YOUR Help!

As part of the Speech Olympics, students are "competing" in a scavenger hunt event. The twist is that instead of them "searching" for something, YOU will be! You will be searching for the evidence of transferred skills from my room to the home, the classroom, the lunch room, out at recess, at the library, in the office, etc. What do I mean by transferred skills? For articulation students, I'm looking for the correct use of their target sounds in everyday conversation, during reading activities, when answering questions, etc...anything OUTSIDE of my room. For language students, I'm looking for improved language skills you will find below.

Each student has received a scavenger hunt card, and all you have to do is initial the appropriate row/column every time you hear/see these skills displayed throughout their day.

The transfer or carry-over of skills is the most important part of speech/language therapy so please help me reinforce learned skills!!!

Below are samples of the speech sound and language scavenger hunt cards:

Correct ___ Sound Scavenger Hunt
SITUATION	Beginning of Words			End of Words			Middle of Words
At home with parents
Talking to brother/sister
Reading aloud
Talking to friends at lunch
At recess
Talking to teacher(s)

Language Scavenger Hunt
SITUATION	Teachers/Parents: Please initial appropriate boxes when you see evidence of these skills in their speaking and/or writing.
Able to name at least 5 items in a given category.
Able to compare and contrast items, naming at least 3 similarities and 3 differences.
Able to describe items using their five senses, using at least 3 describing words.
Able to form clear & complete sentences in writing paragraphs
Able to answer 3-5 questions after listening to or reading an age-appropriate story.
Able to retell a story using main details in the right order.									