Who?

News-2-You® is provided each week to our subscribers through an online subscription. Stimulate communication and increase learning with News-2-you®, the ONLY weekly publication of its kind! This current events Internet newspaper serves beginning/struggling readers of all ages and individuals with special needs. Published in four separate editions, News-2-You® serves the widest possible range of reading comprehension skills. It skillfully applies published and interactive standards-based content in a way that is directly applicable to your classroom. The highly regarded "SymbolStix" symbol set is used throughout the newspaper, providing strong visual reinforcement for all topics covered.

What?

News-2-You® is a family-run business started by Jacquie Clark, a speech-language pathologist with over 30 years classroom experience. The current events newspaper began as a weekly classroom project utilizing concise, symbol-supported text to deliver current events news to a population starving for that information. Today, News-2-You® provides subscribers with over 180 new pages each week, including: news, activities, standards-based lesson plans, computer games, storybooks, and much more-- all related to the feature story of the week.

News-2-You® connects the classroom to the world. It's a connection that spurs learning and increases communication. Our news stories provide stimulating new information on reader-friendly themes. Our subscribers come from all levels of special education (preschool to adult education), regular education (preschool to 4th grades) and ESL classrooms (preschool to adult). Each newspaper is ready to use. No software to learn. No extra prep work required. Just download and build your lesson plans around the material. It's all there!

When?

News-2-You® is produced weekly and follows a production schedule which mirrors the school year calendar. The first issue is published the first week in September, with the final issue delivered the first week in June. (No newspapers will be printed during the two-week winter holiday.) The paper for the next week is put online on the Thursday prior. The weekly production schedule gives teachers advanced information for lesson planning. There are two papers online - the current week's paper and the previous week's paper.

\*New for 2007/2008***

- ✚ Lesson Plans: Downloadable lesson plans that align directly with State & Federal standards are now available to subscribers.

- ✚ Three additional monthly editions published throughout the summer, bringing the published total to 41 issues annually.
- ✚ Monthly “Advanced” Edition targeting higher reading levels. This brings the published total to four levels of the paper: Simple, Regular, Higher and Advanced and an additional edition in Spanish.

Why?

Everyone needs ready access to sources of “new information”. It’s the content that makes our conversations interesting and meaningful, and it sparks interest, curiosity and learning. All individuals have a right to this information, not just the fortunate majority of us able to decipher the content-intensive formats of our newspapers and newscasts. News-2-You® is universally designed for individuals who need concise, visual concepts. It provides “big picture” news to a population previously denied that information, and it does it with style and panache.
